

SPRING 2011 HORNING SUPPORT PROGRAM AWARDS ANNOUNCED

The Advisory Committee for the Horning Support Program for Humanistic Scholarship is pleased to announce the program's spring 2011 awards. These awards, which totaled nearly $50,000, met the criteria of the Horning Endowment both to improve and extend the teaching of humanities to the sciences and other disciplines at Oregon State University and to extend humanistic knowledge in ways that demonstrate the importance of the liberal arts to the sciences.

The Mary Jones and Thomas Hart Horning Endowment was created through a bequest to the university from the late Benjamin B. Horning, an OSU alumnus who went on to a distinguished career in medical education and philanthropy. Dr. Horning saw the need for a deeper understanding of the humanities by students in the sciences and other technical areas. The endowment was designed to create a closer link between science and the humanities.

The Horning Advisory Committee consists of Flo Leibowitz (Philosophy Department), David Luft (History Department), and David Robinson (English Department). The committee will review applications for support again in the fall.

Spring 2011 awards were made in the following categories:

Visiting speakers and conferences:

Peter Betjemann, English Department
Marisa Chappell, History Department
Lisa Ede, English Department
Christopher J. Marshall, Zoology Department
Kathleen Dean Moore, Philosophy Department

Research:

Mina Carson, History Department
Sharyn Clough, Philosophy Department
Michelle Inderbitzin, Sociology Department
Paul Kopperman, History Department
David McMurray, Anthropology Department
Nancy Rosenberger, Anthropology Department
Lisa Sarasohn, History Department
Stuart Ray Sarbacker, Philosophy Department
Tara Williams, English Department
Guy H. Wood, Foreign Languages and Literatures

Program development:

Joan Gross, Anthropology Department
Carly Lettero, Environmental Humanities Initiative