IIFET Fellows Award 2014
Call for Nominations

(Nominations due November 30, 2013)

Dear IIFET Members,

The International Institute of Fisheries Economics & Trade is pleased to announce the Call for Nominations for its 2014 Fellows Award.

The main criterion for selection of Fellows is substantial, long-term, ongoing contributions to the advancement and development of economic theory and analysis in the areas of fisheries/aquaculture economics and/or seafood trade. Achievements may be evidenced by significant research contributions; actual or potential policy impacts will also be considered.

IIFET’s first Fellow, Anthony Scott, was named in 2010; our second, James Wilen, was selected in 2012. We are now actively seeking nominations from the membership of IIFET for our 2014 Fellow.

If you know of someone who should be considered for this prestigious award, and you would like to see that individual honored by his or her professional peers, please take a moment to put together a nomination packet. Note that nominees may be IIFET members or may be from outside the IIFET membership.

Nomination packets may consist of a maximum of 5 pages (single spaced) of documentation in support of the candidate, and may be submitted by any IIFET member--individual, group, or institution. Documentation may include references to publications, testimonials, a brief vitae, or other materials needed to make a convincing argument as to the merits and contributions of the individual under consideration for the award.

Nominations from previous years may be considered again this year. If you have submitted materials for a candidate in the past, and would like to revise and/or resubmit them, please contact Ann.L.Shriver@oregonstate.edu.

This year’s selection panel will be made up of several Past Presidents of IIFET, plus several additional distinguished resource economists, and potentially previous Fellows, under the leadership of immediate Past President Rebecca Metzner.

Nomination packets are due by November 30, 2013. Please email your nominations to the IIFET Secretariat (Ann.L.Shriver@oregonstate.edu). For further information on the Fellows Award, please contact the IIFET Secretariat.

(Note that in addition to the Fellows Award, IIFET also offers a separate “Distinguished Service Award” to reward service to the profession that improves the collaboration between academia, industry, governments and organizations to solve fishery problems. The separate call for nominations for DSA was issued two days ago.)
