

Welcome to Computing and Philosophy @ Oregon State University

Thursday, January 24, 2002

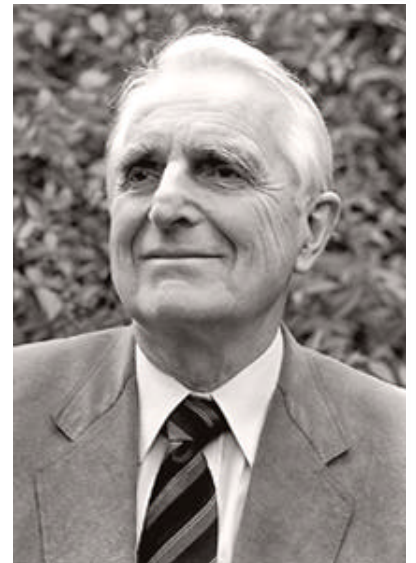

cap@osu presents

The Philosophy and Innovation of Douglas Carl Engelbart

Thursday, January 24, 2002,
CAP@OSU is proud to present a day-long celebration of Douglas Engelbart, a great information technology pioneer and Oregon State University alum.
Among his visionary contributions are:

- The mouse and pointer cursor
- Context-sensitive help
- Hypertext and Hypermedia
- Multiple networked online users
- Shared screen teleconferencing
- Multiple Windows
- Display Editing
- Cross-file Indexing

This event is sponsored by:

- The Provost's Office: Provost's Fund for Excellence
- The Valley Library
- The College of Engineering
- The Department of Computer Science
- The Department of Philosophy
- Distance and Continuing Education
- Information Services, OSU
- The Program for Ethics, Science and the Environment
- The OSU Research Office
- New Media Communication Program
- Hundere Chair of Religion and Culture
- The Horning Foundation
- The APA Committee on Computing and Philosophy

Dr. Engelbart will address the conference all three days.
Attending presenters include:

Robert Horn, Stanford, Mapping Hypertext and Visual Language author

Luciano Floridi, Oxford, Philosophy and Computing author

Mark Pesce, University of Southern California, The Playful Mind author; Virtual Reality Markup Language (VRML) inventor

Tim Berners-Lee, MIT, [by video] World Wide Web inventor

<http://osu.orst.edu/groups/cap>

Thursday, January 24, 2002, the CAP@OSU day-long celebration of Douglas Engelbart is free and open to the public.

For full conference registration, contact Jaylene Olson (541) 737-6439 jaylene.olson@orst.edu or register on-line at <http://osu.orst.edu/groups/cap>