Progressive AAHA accredited mixed animal practice in beautiful Northwest Washington seeking full time, enthusiastic small animal associate to join small animal team.

Greetings students,

The above represents the cut and dried business version of Kulshan Veterinary Hospital's advertisement for a small animal associate, but what we can offer you as a new graduate is much more. We are a fourteen doctor mixed animal practice that has been servicing Lynden, Washington (just north of Bellingham) and the surrounding area for over 50 years. We have five small animal doctors boasting a combined total of over seventy years of veterinary experience. Having hosted veterinarian and veterinary students from several veterinary schools and foreign countries we are also very adept at mentoring and believe in a team oriented approach to veterinary practice.

We have an in-house laboratory with a fully dedicated, trained lab staff, laser, ultrasound and endoscopy. We are also committed to helping new associates learn how to use these pieces of equipment. We also have a good working relationship with specialists both in Lynnwood (near Seattle) and Vancouver (BC) for those more challenging cases.

Not yet convinced that Kulshan would be a good fit for you? Let me tell you about some of the non-veterinary amenities of the area. Lynden is just a short drive from mountains, ocean, Vancouver, B.C. and Seattle. We boast the pleasures of small town living with easy access to big city entertainment and outdoor recreation. Easily said, at Kulshan you can have your cake and eat it too.
